About Me

Hello! I'm Gladys, a dedicated Computer Science student, graphic designer, and software developer specializing in e-commerce websites. With a strong foundation in both the creative and technical sides of web development, I excel at building user-friendly, responsive websites that drive business growth. My expertise spans from brand development and web design to full-stack e-commerce solutions, ensuring that every project I work on is both visually compelling and functionally robust. Whether you need a stunning website or a scalable online store, I'm here to bring your vision to life.
